

GOVERNOR SEEKS REAL VACATION

Craig Does Not Want to Be Bothered While in Pursuit of Rest.

JAMES J. ARRINGTON SAFE

North Carolina Man Escapes Injury in Seres Mas-sacre.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Raleigh, N. C., July 16.—Governor Craig will not be in the executive office after July 26 until about September 1. He will start July 26 on his automobile trip over the Central Highway from the Tennessee line on the west to Beaufort and Morehead on the Atlantic coast. When this trip, made in company of quite a party of road enthusiasts of the State, is over he will take another rest period. During which he hopes to have more rest than he found possible while he was in Asheville. There were hearers of all sorts while he was in Asheville, and many other sorts of executive business that crowded in on him. This time he wants all citizens who have any urgent matters to be presented to come in here before July 26 so that he will not have to be worked during his vacation. Of course, he will hear any very urgent matter during the time he is away, but he doesn't want to be bothered during that time unnecessarily. Most Governors in the past have left the State for their vacations, Atlantic City having been a favorite resort for Governor Glenn. During these absences the Lieutenant-Governor was available for any special emergency. However, the present Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. E. L. Daughtridge, being in Europe, there is no Lieutenant-Governor to be called into service.

The North Carolina Historical Commission has received from Major E. J. Hale, of Fayetteville, a complete file of the Fayetteville Observer from 1855 to 1864. Major Hale's father having been editor during a portion of this period. Major Hale is preparing to go to Costa Rica to assume the duties of minister from the United States, he having been recently appointed by President Wilson.

Safe in Turkey.
Friends here are much interested in the announcement that James J. Arrington, brother of Feller H. Arrington, of the State treasury, is safe in Turkey. He is located at Pera for the American Tobacco Company, and the company has news that all are safe in spite of the fact that the plant, valued at $1,000,000, was destroyed. Mr. Arrington has gone to Saloniki.

The State Board of Osteopathy has licensed four new practitioners for North Carolina. They are: Charles J. Alexander, Burlington; Floyd J. Swift, of High Point; Richard E. Prindle, Waynesville; F. L. Jordan, Elizabeth City.

A party of prominent Goldsboro and Wayne County citizens, headed by Judge W. R. Allen and Nathan O'Brien, spent last night here, on an automobile trip inspecting roads in a number of counties, with a view to determining just what type of roads will be cheapest and best for Wayne County. The expenditure of a large bond issue will soon be undertaken. They are inspecting the roads of Moore, Wake, Franklin and Nash Counties, and are especially impressed with the sand clay roads of Moore County.

MISSING MAN WITH SALVATION ARMY

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Milford, Va., July 16.—After more than a week of suspense as to the sudden disappearance, July 5, of Frank Russell, bookkeeper for the Kenbrook farm, at this place, information received yesterday located him with the Salvation Army on Fourteenth Street in New York City.

Some of the most prominent men in the State will be present. The people of the surrounding country and neighboring towns and villages are being invited to be present with well-filled lunch baskets, and spend the day in the beautiful forest on the Carmel School grounds.

The administration building, costing about $56,000, will be completed by August 1. The dormitory is being furnished, and will be ready for use before the opening of the session. The power house and laundry will be completed by the middle of September.

An Act of Charity Quickly Rewarded

The Act of a Kind, Charitable Lady Towards a Poor Little Helpless Child, and in all Probabilities the One Dollar Gave Saved His Life.

How many millions of dollars are fooled away, and how many thousands of little children die from neglect, where one single dollar, given as this kind-hearted lady gave, saved a life. About four weeks ago a lady called at Tragle's drug store, and with her she had a very puny, delicate child about five years of age. She inquired for Gray, the Quaker Health Teacher. She stated to Gray that it was not her child, but she knew the child and his parents. The child had been in a very deplorable condition for some time, and nothing he took in the way of medicine seemed to benefit him in the least. As the lady said: "I had been reading about the many children and adults that have been cured by the Quaker medicine, and the great number who have expelled worms. Now, I believe this child, little Walter S. French, who resides with his mother at 515 South Rappahannock Street, may be afflicted with that trouble. He is a very bright, loving child, but for the past six months he has no ambition to play, his appetite is very poor, very restless in his sleep, nervous, and it seems as though he must die. After Gray explained why and how the Quaker Herb Extract expelled all worms and germs from the inner system and built up the weak, rundown body, she decided to try one bottle, and to-day her heart is filled with joy, for after giving the extract only four days the child commenced expelling worms, and one of them was as large as your little finger. He is up to a healthy condition. If you can't call, order by mail. They will be sent you by express on receipt of express or post-office money order. A charge of $1.00 or over. Quaker Herb Extract, $1.00 a bottle, six for $5.00; three for $2.50. Oil of Balm for all pain, 50c. Remember the place, Tragle's Drug Co.—Advertisement.

Quaker Herb Extract wrought this marvelous change. Gray, the Quaker Health Teacher, says this is one more added to the already hundreds of thousands of children who owe their lives to the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract. Now, a word to some people is all that's necessary; but there are others that will wait and wait until that child is down sick in bed, taking chances against fate. You know that your child needs medicine. Why not get a bottle of Quaker Herb Extract? It's harmless to give to a babe. No mineral or chemical poison. It will expel all worms from child or adult, and tone up to a healthy condition. If you can't call, order by mail. They will be sent you by express on receipt of express or post-office money order. A charge of $1.00 or over. Quaker Herb Extract, $1.00 a bottle, six for $5.00; three for $2.50. Oil of Balm for all pain, 50c. Remember the place, Tragle's Drug Co.—Advertisement.

News of Petersburg

Times-Dispatch Bureau,
5 Bollingbrook Street,
Petersburg, Va., July 16.

Two accidents, painful but not serious, to citizens of Petersburg occurred yesterday afternoon. J. H. Martin, an employee of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, while riding along on Washington Street on a hand car, was taken sick and fell forward on the track in front of the car. The wheels of the car ran over a leg and an arm of Mr. Martin. Very fortunately, though much bruised, neither limb was broken. Mr. Martin was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Joseph Peterson, a young white man, while at work yesterday afternoon on the improvements in progress at the Saal Building on Sycamore Street, had his right hand badly injured. An iron beam which he was assisting in putting in position, fell, and catching his hand beneath, completely severed the forefinger at the base and injured the middle finger. The severed finger dropped to the floor. He was treated and taken to his home.

Fine Outlook for Tobacco.

The growing crop of tobacco throughout this section is reported to be in splendid condition, with the prospect of a satisfactory yield. The season has been favorable to crops of all kinds. The trade is actively endeavoring to make Petersburg a market for bright as well as dark tobacco, and the prospects for that considerable quantities of the former will be offered on the market next season. Last year's crop of tobacco is nearly exhausted, only occasional lots being now brought to market.

Appraisals Noted.

Only two of the owners of property on River Street have noted appeals from the decision of the Council committee awarding damages to the result for the proposed elevation of the grade of that street. The committee awarded $200 damages to B. D. Bono & Co., excepting to the award, claiming their property would be damaged to the extent of $7,000. The other appellant is the Worth Pease Company, who allege that the award for damages to its property is too small. Most of the other property owners have acquiesced in the award of the committee. The Council, at its next meeting, will receive the final report of the committee.

Hotel Property Transferred.

The new Shirley Hotel property on West Tabb Street, formerly transferred to the Citizens' Hotel Company, Inc., and the papers in the case were duly signed from the property of the real and personal property of the Shirley Hotel Company, and the consideration named therefor is $12,500. The Citizens' Hotel Company will be given possession of the property on August 1. The Shirley Hotel, it is understood, will be temporarily leased for short periods until the new owners are ready to build, which will probably not be until next spring. The present structure will then be pulled down and a new 100-room, modern hotel will be erected on the site.

INMATES OF HOME WILL BE CARED FOR

Arrangements for Their Comfort While New Building Is Under Way.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bedford City, Va., July 16.—Mr. Perott, of Illinois, chairman of the grand trustees of the Order of Elks, made a visit Tuesday to the Elks' National Home here, and at the break-fast hour addressed the residents of the home, asking each for a decision as to where he would prefer to remain during the time required to demolish the present home and construct the new one.

He offered $365 a year with the privilege of returning to his home or some other place or remaining with the management at whatever place is deemed best during the interval required for building the new home, which will cover a period of from one to two years.

They were given until the noon hour to make a decision, which would be final.

At 12 o'clock the Elks assembled and when the answers were given the vote was about equal, half accepting the offer of money, which would amount to $1 a day for maintenance, the other half, mindful of all of the luxuries, comforts and amusements provided for them, that would far exceed an allowance of a dollar a day, left themselves in the hands of the management. Where the temporary home will be established has not yet been made public.

The present building is one of most artistic and beautiful architecture, erected for a hotel in the days of boom times.

The administration or central building is to be put on the same site, and a number of large and comfortable cottages built adjacent to it. The appropriation for the work is $260,000.

TYPHOID FEVER CLOSELY WATCHED

Two Small Epidemics Checked by State Board of Health.

Two small outbreaks of typhoid fever in different sections of Virginia have been definitely traced to their source by officials of the State Board of Health within the past few days. Because of the warm winter and the consequent general prevalence of typhoid-carrying house flies, there has been fear of undue prevalence of typhoid, and the fear seemed confirmed when the disease made its appearance in a great many sections in the early summer. As a result, Assistant Health Commissioner Allen W. Freeman has been devoting most of his time to close inspections of outbreaks with a view of tracing the causes and preventing the spread of infection, his efforts having met with marked success.

In one case the State's investigator found that the outbreak was plainly due to the pollution of a spring; in the other epidemic he held that typhoid fever on a dairy farm was responsible for the disease among the users of the milk.

In the former outbreak a number of typhoid cases appeared in a single family, with one case in a family living nearby. Examination showed that both families had used water from a spring which, during a rainy spell, two weeks before the fever appeared, had become filled with trash from the surrounding watershed.

"It was a typical outbreak, and unquestionably due to failure to protect a spring from surface washing," said Dr. Freeman in his report. The family physician, however, was alive to the danger, and had vaccinated every one in the community against the disease.

In the other epidemic investigated by Dr. Freeman a number of cases of typhoid appeared simultaneously in a Virginia city. The local health officer became suspicious from the location of the cases that they were due to milk infection, and called on the State Board of Health for assistance. Inspection showed that a vast majority of the cases in the city in question were among those who used milk from one dairy, and inquiry at the dairy disclosed the fact that the milk was cooled in water drawn from a stream that flowed past a house where typhoid existed. It was also found that the wife of one of the workers in the dairy living near-by had been taken sick with typhoid some weeks ago, and had worked in the dairy. A plain case could scarcely be imagined. Dr. Freeman reported, "and the findings of the local health officer were confirmed."

Officials of the board point out that the prompt report of these cases and the hearty co-operation of the local health officers and physicians made possible the immediate discovery of the cause, and thereby enabled the afflicted communities to take precautions. "By no means is it the rule," reported the epidemiologist, "that the cause can be so easily and definitely ascertained as in these two outbreaks. More frequently we find that general neglect of sanitary precautions results in the indirect carriage of typhoid fever in a more complex manner, and make definite findings impossible. But in every case we know positively that careless methods of sewage disposal are responsible for the spread of fever, and where the cause is known, proper sewage disposal is universal, typhoid must keep this fact constantly before them if they wish to be rid of this summer scourge."

Only sixteen cases of typhoid have been reported in Richmond during the first half of July. This is under the usual July average, and is a sharp decline from the number reported during the first half of June.

The rat leaped into a culvert, the terrier promptly followed. The culprit was taken off the track by a half a mile. Hackmen, bootblacks and station loungers peered into the culvert, but could do nothing. "Dog gone," they said.

Antonio Angelico, a newsboy, decided that as the recent rains had swelled the brook and caused the culvert to be open at Pine Street and soon was rewarded by the find of the terrier, holding the rat firmly in his jaws.

Dog and rat were carried back to the woman who had stood wringing her hands in distress. The dog killed the rat quickly. Then the boy started a cleaning process with a red handkerchief. For returning her pet and cleaning him the woman gave Angelico a $5 bill. Then, with the terrier
